Natural Disasters in Asia: Representations & Responses

Educator Workshop
Duke University

In conjunction with the annual meeting Southeast Conference of the Association for Asian Studies

Sat., January 18, 2014
9:00am – 5:00pm

Open to K-12 (emphasis on secondary education) and community college educators teaching any subject.

Explore sociocultural responses to natural disasters in Asia. Natural disasters and the trauma they inflict can provide students with an opportunity to connect with an aspect of universal human experience, and simultaneously encounter the real and specific geographical and cultural differences that govern our responses. Specialists from art history, religion, ethnomusicology, history, and public policy will offer interdisciplinary perspectives on various disasters in modern history.

FOR MORE INFO AND REGISTRATION:
https://duke.edu/apsi/outreach/teacher.html
CONTACT: apsi@duke.edu / 919-684-2604

Asian/Pacific Studies Institute
Duke University